Jiann-Ping Hsu College of Public Health presents Grand Rounds

JIANN-PING HSU COLLEGE OF PUBLIC HEALTH
presents
Grand Rounds

Public Health Grand Rounds is a seminar open to our entire campus & community.

Friday, Nov. 15

12:10 – 1:10 P.M. | Info. Technology Building, Rm 1005

Statesboro Campus (Live streaming to our Armstrong Campus in Solms Hall, Room 214)

Dr. Jessica Schwind will present

One Health: A Transdisciplinary Approach to Wicked Problems

Wicked problems are complex social or ecological issues that involve a variety of stakeholders with differing viewpoints. Because zoonoses, antimicrobial resistance, climate change, and biodiversity loss represent a significant threat to planetary health, finding solutions to current crises will be a great challenge and will require systems thinking. One Health is an transdisciplinary concept that focuses on improving communication and collaboration across multiple sectors to attain optimal health for people, domestic animals, wildlife, plants, and our environment. This talk will explore One Health applications globally with a focus on emerging infectious diseases and emergency preparedness. Conflicts and complexities are inherent to all ecosystems. Therefore, the One Health approach is important to our comprehensive understanding of and response to today's global health challenges.

BIO

Dr. Jessica Smith Schwind is an epidemiologist and program evaluator. Dr. Schwind joined the Department of Biostatistics, Epidemiology, and Environmental Health Sciences at JPHCOPH in August 2017. As a doctoral student at the University of California, Davis, she worked on the USAID: Emerging Pandemic Threats PREDICT project, which was a research endeavor aimed at forecasting the next pandemic along the human-animal-environment interface in 20 countries globally. Her current research interests include disease surveillance, capacity building, and communication for the prevention and/or early recognition of outbreaks with a focus on best practices for operationalizing the One Health approach in Nepal.

Assistant Professor of epidemiology Jessica Schwind, Ph.D., will present a “One Health” seminar. “One Health” is a transdisciplinary concept that focuses on improving communication and collaboration across multiple sectors to attain optimal health for people, domestic animals, wildlife, plants and the environment.

Books Donation Drive to help raise funds for Staff Scholarship program

A poster for a book donation drive at Georgia Southern University. The top half has a dark blue background with the word "Books" in a large, gold, cursive font. Below it, "DONATION DRIVE" is written in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters. To the left of the text is a graphic of four stylized book spines in white and gold. A horizontal line of white dots separates the top section from the bottom. The bottom section has a gold background. It features the dates "SEPTEMBER 20 - NOVEMBER 15" in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters. Below the dates, the text "Donate your gently used books to raise funds for the Staff Scholarship program" is written in white, sans-serif font. Underneath, "fiction/non-fiction" and "children books | cook books" are listed. To the right of this text is another graphic of three stylized book spines. Below the text, a horizontal line of white dots is followed by the heading "COLLECTION POINTS" in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters. Under this heading, two columns of locations are listed: "Armstrong Campus" (Lane Library, Armstrong Center, Science Center, Rec Center) and "Statesboro Campus" (College of Education, Hollis, RAC). At the bottom left, a small note states: "Book donations will also be accepted at the Staff Professional Development Conference November 13, 2019". At the bottom right is the Georgia Southern University logo, which includes a stylized eagle head and the text "GEORGIA SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY" and "STAFF COUNCIL".
